

Who's Hungry

The CT premiere of Who's Hungry (2012), a stunning experimental puppet theater work that weaves together the oral histories of five very different homeless and/or hungry residents of Santa Monica, California.

Friday, September 27 & Saturday, September 28, 2013 at 8pm.

World Music Hall, located at 40 Wyllys Avenue on the Wesleyan University campus in Middletown, CT.

A 24-foot-long dinner table transforms into a runway-style puppet stage for four puppeteers using a variety of styles including figures inspired by Japanese Bunraku, two-dimensional rod puppets, and shadow puppetry. Written and produced by Los Angeles performance artist Dan Froot, designed and directed by New York puppet artist Dan Hurlin, and featuring music by Seattle composer Amy Denio, Who's Hungry brings communities together, inspires theatergoers to engage with the issues, and supports the efforts of food policy activists.

The stories told in Who's Hungry are those of a former interior designer, an addiction-recovery caseworker and recovering heroin addict, a subsidized housing resident evicted while undergoing a dire health
